

David Rudolf
7 Fernshaw Mansions, Fernshaw Road
SW10 0TD, London
+447808527618
david.g.rudolf@gmail.com

21/09/2013

Citi Recruitment

Dear Sir or Madam:

My name is David Rudolf and I am an undergraduate physics student at Imperial College London.

I am writing to you to apply for the Corporate Banking placement in London. I am interested in this position because I would like to gain experience in the banking industry. My good problem solving and analytical skills as well as a broad knowledge of languages make me a good candidate for this position.

I have decided to take a year out of university to gain some professional experience. I am meticulous, hard working and motivated. I have an acute predisposition for detail and I adapt quickly to new environments. Through the study of physics I have gained problem solving and analytical skills that I believe will make me a valuable member of the Corporate banking team. I am also well spoken – I speak four European languages fluently; I consider this as one of my greatest assets for this position as the world of banking is highly international. Furthermore, although I do not have any prior experience in this industry, I will however mention that I have had a two months long internship at Shell this summer.

I have a keen interest in this industry and I dream of having the opportunity of experiencing it first-handedly. Being fully aware that physics is not the optimal area of study for a banking intern, I am kindly asking for your exceptional consideration.

Yours faithfully,

David Rudolf